HONORARY DEGREE
DOCTOR OF LAWS
HENRY C. COLEMAN

Henry Coleman's story is an example to any young college student preparing for a future in the business world. Mr. Coleman's life is one of the best illustrations of what the American way of life is all about and what it takes to build a successful career in business.

Mr. Coleman, born in Columbia, graduated from Clemson in 1926 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Animal Science, an unlikely major for a young man whose name would become a household word among banking circles throughout the South.

For the past several decades he has been one of the busiest and best-known residents of Daytona Beach, Florida. It was here in 1937 that he found his place in the sun of Florida's financial world. A job as assistant secretary-treasurer of Industrial Savings Bank launched Henry Coleman on a banking career which became highly successful and thrust him into the mainstream of his community's civic affairs.

While keeping up with the demands of his profession, Mr. Coleman was always ready to devote his talents and service to the people of his community because of his strong sense of civic responsibility. His natural ability to motivate people to action combined with his quick wit and humor have made him one of the most popular men in his profession as well as one of Clemson's most popular alumni.

Mr. Coleman served with the same banking institution throughout his career, seeing it through three name changes, affiliation with a holding company, and growth from one quarter million to 62 million dollars when he retired nine years ago.

Mr. Coleman introduced many innovations to banking, reflecting his genuine interest and concern for people. He made his bank a people-oriented institution in its services much like this University. One of his major professional goals was to create a new image of the American banker and dispel the traditional concept of the impersonal, uncaring banker.

Just as he does today, Mr. Coleman carried a strong personal belief in America and the free enterprise system into all of his pursuits. He has never hesitated to express his staunch support of capitalism, conservative government, and respect for individual rights.

Mr. Coleman has held several key positions in Chamber of Commerce activities at the local, state, and national levels. He served as president of the Daytona Beach Chamber, two terms as president of the State of Florida Chamber of Commerce, and was vice president, treasurer, and director of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Henry Coleman always has found time to be a friend of education, and he has been involved in higher education efforts throughout the Southeast. He was a founding trustee at Florida Presbyterian College (now Eckerd College) and served on the foundation board of Florida Technological University (now Central Florida University).

He and his bank were instrumental in bringing Embry Riddle Aeronautical University to the City of Daytona Beach from Miami.

In all of his travels, Mr. Coleman always has remained in close touch with activities at Clemson University and has been one of its most involved alumni. He is one of the few people to serve as president of both the Clemson University Foundation and the National Alumni Association. In 1966 he was recipient of the Alumni Distinguished Service Award, the highest honor given by the Alumni Association.

His service to Clemson has been guided by a commitment to the University's excellence across the board.

Clemson University is honored to award this honorary doctoral degree to Mr. Henry C. Coleman in recognition of his contributions to perpetuating American democracy and the pursuit of free enterprise, his life of outstanding citizenship, and his invaluable service to this University as a loyal son of Clemson.

HONORARY DEGREE
DOCTOR OF LAWS
MAX M. HELLER

Serving his community and state while working to make the quality of life better for his fellowman has been a hallmark of Max Heller's life. Prior to his most recent career in public service, Mr. Heller was a successful businessman whose achievements are testimony that the American dream of success through hard work is possible.

Arriving in America in 1938 from his native Austria, which was under Nazi occupation, Mr. Heller settled in Greenville, South Carolina, where he worked as a stock boy with a shirt-manufacturing company. Ten years later he founded his own such company and was an executive in the apparel industry until retirement in 1968. His desire was to devote most of his time to serving his community in civic and community affairs.

The following year Mr. Heller was elected to the Greenville City Council and in 1971 was elected Mayor of the City of Greenville. He was reelected to a second four-year term in 1975.

Mr. Heller is presently chairman of the State Development Board, an appointment made by Governor Richard Riley in January 1979.

In an age when self-centeredness is more often the rule than the exception, Mr. Heller's life—his concern for others—has been guided by the traditional values and morals that have helped America endure and prosper since her founding. His vision has been outward. He has provided strong leadership in fostering better human relations and understanding in the Greenville community and has been widely praised for this work.

Mr. Heller's life is one of the best examples of the "community-minded citizen" who has been the backbone of towns and cities across America.

Organizations representing just about every facet of community life have sought his services. Whether it is higher education, health-care delivery, housing, cultural affairs, or other vital human services, Mr. Heller has given his time and counsel to all of them.

An impressive list of awards and honors speaks well of his many years of public service and contributions to making South Carolina a better place for all of us.

Mr. Heller received the "Man of the Year" award in 1970 from the National Council of Jewish Women, the 1972 "Man of the Year" award from the North and South Carolina B'nai B'rith Lodges, and was recipient of the Daughters of the American Revolution Freedom Award in 1973.

Further honors came to him in 1976 when he received the first Distinguished Service Award given by the Greater Greenville Ministerial Alliance for outstanding leadership and service to the Greenville community. In addition, the Greenville Sertoma Club and the Pioneer District Sertomas gave Mr. Heller the "Service to Mankind Award," which is the highest award given by the Sertoma organization; and he was chosen by the Greenville County Human Relations Commission to receive its first "Human Relations Award."

Also, in 1977 he was elected president of the Municipal Association of South Carolina and a member of the Board of Directors of the National League of Cities. He was appointed by the Governor to the Board of the Energy Research Institute in 1979; and in 1980 to the Governor's Economic Task Force, the Task Force on the Arts, and to the Nuclear Advisory Committee.

In 1978 the Greenville Housing Foundation created the annual "Max M. Heller Neighborhood Improvement Award," which is given to nonprofit groups for outstanding neighborhood improvement projects.

Clemson University is honored to present this honorary doctoral degree to Mr. Max Heller in recognition of his exemplary life in community and state citizenship and his outstanding leadership and contributions toward a stronger South Carolina.

The University Regalia

The University mace is the symbolic representation of the whole of Clemson University and must be present at any convocation where the University, through its delegated members, is acting officially. At any official convocation such as commencement, the University Marshal, carrying the mace, precedes the President into the assembly. The mace rests before the President's chair or speaker's stand throughout the ceremony, and its removal from the assembly at the close of a convocation is symbolic of the official withdrawal of the University and, thus, the close of the proceedings.

The decorative design of Clemson's mace is derived from the ceremonial maces carried by heads of state and church in the Middle Ages. Its basic club-like shape, however, is much more ancient, probably going back to man's pre-history. It is made of walnut wood and silver, with the seal of the University in gold and the University colors represented by insets of cornelian (orange) and amethyst (purple). Amethyst is also the state stone of South Carolina.

The Presidential chain and seal is symbolic of the authority vested in the office of president by the governing body of the University. Only the University President may wear it, and while wearing it he speaks for the whole body of the institution. Clemson's chain and seal are made of silver and gold, and cornelian and amethyst.

The batons of the college marshals also descend from medieval "staffs of office" which were carried by the senior members of departments of state or church. They display the seal of the University and the symbolic color of the discipline to which the college belongs. Clemson's batons are made of walnut wood and silver with the various disciplines inset with enamel.

The University regalia were designed and executed by Mr. Robert Ebendorf. Mr. Ebendorf is twice winner of the Tiffany Award and one of the most acclaimed goldsmiths of our era. The enamel plaques for the batons were executed by the late Professor Marshall C. Bell, and the lapidary work was executed by Mr. C. C. Wilson of Clemson University.

Historical Statement

Clemson University is named for Thomas Green Clemson (1807-1888), who left the bulk of his estate to the State of South Carolina for the founding of the institution.

Thomas Clemson was born in Philadelphia in 1807 and educated at the Royal School of Mines in Paris (1828-1832). His early profession was that of a mining engineer; but circumstances diverted his interests into politics and the life of a southern planter, and he soon became an enthusiastic advocate of scientific agriculture. He had a career as a diplomat (charge d'affairs to Belgium, 1844-1852) and served as the first Superintendent of Agricultural Affairs in Washington (1860). As a scientist he published numerous articles in the fields of mining, chemistry, and agriculture. His varied activities included his assistance in the founding of the Maryland Agricultural College, his support of the Morrill Act, his leadership in South Carolina after the Civil War, and his part in founding Clemson University.

Thomas Clemson was the son-in-law of South Carolina's John C. Calhoun, a political figure of national importance during the first half of the nineteenth century. Mr. Calhoun's home, Fort Hill, is preserved on the Clemson Campus as a national shrine.

The academic program at Clemson College began in 1893 with an enrollment of 446. The first "college prospectus" announced only two four-year curricula, supplemented by two two-year preparatory courses. Today the University has ten major academic units. These are the College of Agricultural Sciences, the College of Architecture, the College of Commerce and Industry, the College of Education, the College of Engineering, the College of Forest and Recreation Resources, the College of Liberal Arts, the College of Nursing, the College of Sciences, and the Graduate School.

The institution is an accredited member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools; various curricula are accredited by the National Architectural Accrediting Board, National League for Nursing, Society of American Foresters, American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business, Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, and National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

Clemson is a land-grant institution. As such, it is engaged not only in its primary academic program, but does extensive research at the main campus and at five agricultural experiment stations located in the State. The University is also heavily committed to a varied program of public service, including the work of agricultural extension which has professional personnel located in each of the State's counties.

CLEMSON ALMA MATER

A. C. Corcoran, '19

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness,
Where the Tigers play;
Here the sons of dear old Clemson
Reign supreme alway.

Chorus

Dear old Clemson, we will triumph
And with all our might,
That the Tiger's roar may echo
O'er the mountain height.

We will dream of great conquests,
For our past is grand,
And her sons have fought and conquered
Every foreign land.

Where the mountains smile in grandeur
O'er the hill and dale,
Here the Tiger lair is nestling
Swept by storm and gale.

We are brothers strong in manhood,
For we work and strive;
And our alma mater reigneth
Ever in our lives.
